THE CHINA MAIL.

HONGKONG, FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1877.

THE telegram in regard to the Suez Canal published in another column perhaps hardly as explicit as it should be. Taking the telegram as it stands it would seem that Russia has made the proposal that the Canal should be considered neutralised—but what is meant in this instance by that term must be more or less a matter for conjecture. Pr suming that the neutralisation is only intended to be temporary, Russia probably requires that neither the Porte, with Egypt, nor herself be allowed to use the Canal for the transport of soldiers, arms, or any warlike purpose. Considering that the Canal runs through Egyptian territory, its distance from Russia, and the helpless state of the Russian navy, it is scarcely a matter for surprise that England has declined to support th proposition of Russia. It is just possi ble it was intended that the agreement should apply to England in case she became involved in war, an arrangement exceedingly convenient for a Russian descent on India, presuming the possibility of such a step, and equally awkward for England in defending her Eastern possessions. Any interference with the right of way of England through Suez Canal, either for the purposes of peace or war, must infallibly be regarded by her as a casus belli, and everything seems to point to the conclusion that England must, sooner or later, become possessed of the territory through which the canal runs. Lord Derby has given no "uncertain sound" as to the position England will assume should her free passage of the Canal be threatened in any way. "The Porte, the Khedive and England are firmly determined to disallow any warlike operations on the Canal." This has been clearly expressed to the Russian Ambassador in London although, by the way, we may notice that that individual was stated by telegraph a few days ago to have left London for St. Petersburg. The telegram stating that the insurgents in Circassia have been defeated by the Russians with great loss at least leaves no doubt that this remarkable people had risen in rebellion, and that, too, in considerable numbers.

There has probably never been a time in the history of the Church of England when her working and constitution has been the object of such general and wid spread attention as at present. is not too much to say that she is doing more and better work, and showing altogether more vigorous symptoms of life and exercising a wider influence than in any bygone day. That this especially the case in the Colonies is evidenced by the continual recurrence in the Indian and Australian journals of articles and correspondence on the subject. This interest on the part of the laity generally is a healthy sign. It will Emuy leaves for Amoy on or about this be a bad day for England and Church when her affairs cease to interest 2 p.m. -Sale of Goodwill, Furniture, to her communion or otherwise. It can hardly have escaped the notice of our readers that great anomalies have arisen, and now exist as to the relations between the Colonial Clergy and their Bishops, owing partly to the altered status of the latter consequent on the withdrawal of Letters Patent, and also from the unwonted claims to absolute authority which are being made in certain and influential quarters. It is not too much to say that Englishmen will never tolerate an absolute despotism in the Church any more than in the State. Unhappily this is the direction towards which matters are tending in some of the most important Colonial dioceses, in all in fact in which, as in that of Hongkong for instance, no steps have been taken by the formation of a representative body of laity equally with clergy, to avert the dangers inseparable from an irresponsible episcopal dictator-

It appears that the four Indian designated.

Bishops, being assembled in Conference at Calcutta in March last, agreed upon a series of resolutions for the government of the Church in the Colonies which only stop short of claiming for each Bishop in his own diocese absolute infallibility. All appointments, lay as well as spiritual, all teaching, all services of every kindare to be subject to the Bishop's veto, and as to every change or increase made to any of these the Bishop must first be consulted. These claims seem in themselves sufficiently preposterous, and in England would have but to be hinted at, to be pronounced utterly inadmissible by the voice of public opinion. But it is to the approaching Pan Anglican Synod and not to public opinion that they are to be submitted, having first been communicated to the remaining Colonial Bishops for to the arrangement, and has informed the their opinion, with the object of their being made the law of the Church in the Colonies generally. THE CLERICALS AND THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL SCHOOL. To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."

8th June, 1877. SIR,-I understand that His Excellency the Governor has taken great interest in the denominational schools of the Colony, having been trotted, by the two Bishops, round their several institutions. These movements of His Excellency you have noticed in your local news column, but I have not yet seen any account of the Governor's visit to the Government Central School. It is not for a moment to be supposed that Mr Hennessy has not yet made himself personally acquainted with the outs and ins of that admirable department; and you must brush up your reporting staff a little more than you seem to do. So many rumours are flying about concerning what the Governor is going to do and what he is not going to do, that the public naturally look for these reports. Of course If Mr Hennessy has not yet looked at the School, and is forming all his opinions on the local experience of the members of the episcopate before mentioned, then you newspaper folks are not to blame. But this is a supposition so preposterous that I cast it to the four typhoons of heaven. Sir Arthur Kennedy was a warm supporter of Mr Stewart and his "numerous family," and we have been told on the best authority that our present Governor purposes following in his footsteps. Sir Richard MacDonnell used to make some of his best speeches in the Central School. Have they and we all been wrong in this matter? and are we to be put right by our new administrator of affairs? I sincerely hope not .-Yours anxiously,

FLOGGING AND CLASS LEGISLA. To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL"

Hongkong, June 8, 1877. SIR,-I have read your article commenting on the action of His Excellency Pope Hennessy in reference to flogging and also the letter under the signature of "Diner Out" on the same subject. I think there are points both for and against your comments and the action of the Governor. and I shall proceed to adduce my reasons for saying so.

The subjects of Flogging and Class

Legislation are too formidable to be treated together, and I shall therefore divide them into two heads, dealing first with flogging. quite coincide with you as to the undestrability of abolishing flogging entirely. There are crimes of such a violent nature which render the use of the whin indispensable, in order to have a deterrent effect. The degrading nature of flogging may have influenced the mind of His Excellency in wishing to abolish it, but he must remember that the universal mode of punishment in the Chinese Courts is the bamboo, and whenever any one comes within its clutches, be he what he may.whether a rough or a gentleman of education-he invariably enjoys the benefit of the rod. It may be said it is a barbarous mode of punishment, and if the Chinese people choose to be barbarous, that is no reason why their example should be followed by a more enlightened people. This I say, is only a question of sentiment, and sentiment should not be imported into the administration of the law, which necessity for the safety of the public requires to be sternly carried out. It may be a very humane thing to abolish flogging altogether, but is figging entirely abandoned for heinous crimes in England? If not, why should it be so here? and can we do with. out it? I think not; and for these reasons I fancy you and your correspondent must have mistaken the views of His Excellency.

As to the advisability or otherwise of allowing flogging for indecent assault or indecent exposure of the person, I shall leave the question untouched, it being a matter refined morals; nor would I say anything regarding assault with intent to rob, merely observing that in another Ordinance assault with intent to commit a felony (robbery is a felony) renders the offender liable to imprisonment only. As to flogging being allowed for common assault committed in a brothel, that I think is certainly objectionable. Why should there be. a difference in the punishment for an assault in a brothel with an assault anywhere else, -- say the Theatre or a grog shop! Why should there be more protection for the one than for the other? It is also impolitic. It gives the appearance that Government must do all it can to encourage the establishment of such institutions of ill-fame which dire necessity alone induces it to countenance. The term "riotous assemblage" is also likely to be misinterpreted; it may be a very serious one which renders the proclamation of the Riot Act necessary, or it may be simply a faction fight wherein a number of partis ne may be engaged in mauling each other with the property of the ex-daimio of Sanuki, Paris, to gain the freedom of the Bosphorus, Bosnia is most probable. From Poti to the Persian frontier there are scarely more than 100,000. But in organisation, though not in arms, the Russian army is far superior to its enemy. Aided as she will be by insurrections in Europe, and by Persia in Asia, Russia can win on both sides, unless there is foreign interference.

Will there be such interference? Undoubtedly there will in Europe. We go back to first principles. It is impossible that Austria can allow Russia to hold the Danube. It is certain that England will not allow her to take Constantinople. Any forecast of events must take as its basis these two facts: Austria's vital interests are at stake on the Danube; our imperial existence is at stake at Constantinople. If therefore, Russia attacks in Europe, she does so knowing that she will not, even if successful in war, be allowed by Austria to hold a foot of ground on the Danube; and it is an admitted maxim by the Russian strategists, that no Russian army can remain south of the Pruth, unless the neutrality of Austria is secured. Further, she attacks, knowing that the one great goal of her ambition-Constantinoplewill be barred to her by English fleets and to advance to the Balkans. Is it, then, conceivable that Russia will Shanghal, demand, ... ... attack in Europe at all? Yes; for two reasons. First, because the army so long kept upon the Pruth is an element that cannot be disregarded, and it demands Gold Leaf, ... ... action as a reward for its months of weary inaction, satisfection for its miseries and its hardships of the winter; secondly, because even to the Czar, Gortschakoff has. had to cloak his ambitions under the garb Slavonio sympathics, punishment Turkey for her misgovernment of children of the true Church, relief for these from Mussulman oppression; and the He mist be acted out and covered. But in Europe, Hussis can gain no reward for her costly preparations, for the losses in blood and in money that war will yet entail is in Asia that she will seek this. It is the rich provinces of Armenia that she will find some compensation; and when once she has crossed the frontier, she will make | Hongkong Hotel Co., 4621 no peace till she has taken, not only Kars, but Erzeroum, not only Batoum, but Trebizond; till she has thus recured for herself the outlets of the Persian trade, ( aken at Mesers Walsoner & Co. & Franciscs. and scaports upon the eastern soast of the Black Sea; till the valley of the Euphrates is in her hands, and that route to India for ever shut to England, her jealous fos.

Russia has also 20 legations; to the one in Pekin, the Budget allows 57,000 roubles, whilst the one at Darmstadt has the smallest allowance of all, 11,000 roubles. The entire diplomatic representation of Russia costs her 1,120,000 roubles a year; one-fifth of which is absorbed by the legations in Germany.
